

Lake Champlain Yacht Club Instructor in Training Job Description

Instructors in Training can assist with up to two weeks per sailing season. There will be a maximum of two Instructors in Training each week. This is an unpaid position. No fee is charged for the session(s) the Instructor in Training is assisting with.

Instructors in Training work with the participants in the LCYC Junior Sailing program under the direction of the Head Instructor and the instruction staff. Instructors in Training will assist in teaching the students all aspects of sailing and seamanship during classroom sessions and on the water. Instructors in Training will also assist with fun activities for participants to do when the weather does not permit sailing activities to take place.

Safety is the first priority of all LCYC instructors. The Instructor in Training is responsible to ensure that the curriculum is carried out in the safest possible manner, in compliance with the safety rules, and to proactively address any safety concerns with the instruction staff and/or program Director.

Fun is the second priority of the junior program staff. Each student should go home with a strong desire to return the next morning, the next week, and the next summer. Participants should have fun on the water, and should have fun when conditions do not allow for them to be on the water.

The third priority for the staff is to instill a lifelong passion for sailing in the participants. Throughout the summer, the instruction staff will have an opportunity to introduce the students to dinghy sailing, big boat sailing, racing, and cruising

It is expected that the Instructor in Training will at all times conduct themselves in a polite and respectful manner when dealing with program participants, their parents, club members, officers and staff, as well as other persons that they may come in contact with in the performance of their duties. They will refrain from engaging in conduct that is not in the best interests of LCYC and which is contrary to the moral standards of the club. General rules for all Instructors in Training include:
